

A Booklet of Wordlists for Reading,
Copying,
Dictation and Making Sentences

Dear Parents,

This a booklet of wordlists. Frequently used 3-letter words, 4-letter words, 5–letter words, 6-letter words and double letter words are listed in this book.

Who can use the wordlists?

The wordlists in this booklet are useful for student of any class. All school going students would benefit from studying the words listed.

How to use the wordlists?

1. Improving pronunciation: Make your child read the words aloud as frequently as possible. You can correct mistakes in her pronunciation. Take the help of the internet to listen to the pronunciation of the words. We follow British English so listen to the pronunciation in British English.

2. Improving vocabulary, comprehension and fluency in reading: A good vocabulary is a passport to success. One of the greatest gifts you can give your child is an expanded vocabulary. The success of children greatly depends on the number of words they can use. Words help them to communicate, put shape to their thoughts, to socialize and to imagine and wonder.

Reading the wordlists regularly helps children to be familiar with a wide array of words. When they come across these words while reading, they take note of them. Familiarity with words helps in easy recall of these words and they don't have to spend time decoding these words and figuring out their meanings. There would be a definite improvement in comprehension. Wordlists promote speed reading with understanding.

It is not enough if they read the words. They must understand the meanings of these words and they must become familiar with their usages. Reading the list of words is the first step in acquiring a good vocabulary and fluency in reading. The children can grow into quick readers.

3. Improving writing skills: Practice with wordlists gives them confidence to read more and learn more. Writing fifteen sentences a day is an excellent way to improve language skills. Encourage children to regularly use the dictionary to understand the usages of these words. Over a period of time, children learn to convey their thoughts.

The internet is useful to learn more about the usage of these words. Search the net for sentence examples. Two excellent sites are www.manythings.com and www.tatoeba.org. More than 84 lakh sentence examples are provided in tatoeba. An added feature is the translations of these sentences into most of the Indian languages.

4. Wordlists help struggling readers.

A. Words become their friends: Some children have difficulty in reading. Wordlists help them to learn to read and spell. By making children read the words in the lists aloud, parents come to know the words which cause problems for their children and they can take remedial action.

Children with reading difficulties avoid reading as much as possible. Therefore, they are familiar with only a limited number of words. Reading the list of words makes them familiar with more words. This prompts them to read as their level of confidence goes up.

B. Enables them to decode long words: Struggling readers find it difficult to read long words. The key to decode long words is to be fluent in reading short words. A child who knows how to read dam and age would be able to read the word damage easily. Percentage is a long word which could pose difficulty for a struggling reader. This word is made up of three words - per, cent, age. Practising to read short words would help children to read and spell better.

Suggested activities

1. Which words are difficult for your child to handle?

Have your child practise reading these words. Make your child read aloud. You would come to know the difficulties of your child in reading. Teach her to read and spell.

2. Learning to pronounce words.

Have children read the words in the wordlists aloud. Use a dictionary to teach the pronunciation of the words. The internet provides free access to dictionaries. The online dictionaries provide audio recording of words. Click on the audio button to listen to the pronunciation of words. Teach your child to pronounce words with the help of online dictionaries.

3. Concentrate on high frequency words:

Have children read all the words. Initially, concentrate on high frequency words and those words which are found in the children's textbooks. For example, can, cat and cap are high frequency words but cod, cog and cue are not. Teach age-appropriate words. Though children should be able to read all the words, they can concentrate more on words that are age-appropriate. For example, consider the word apt. A child in the fourth class should know how to read apt, but she need not study this word in great detail.

4. Learn to use the words:

Make a note of high frequency words in these wordlists and teach children their meaning and how to use these words in sentences. Ask them to translate these words into their mother tongue. Translation is an effective tool for non-native speakers to learn English. Writing fifteen sentences daily is a good method for improving writing skills and to express one's thoughts.

To get models of sentences using a word, search the internet and frame the query as: Sentence examples for _____.

Example: to get examples of sentences using gratitude, frame the question as: sentence examples for gratitude.

5. Dictate words:

Dictation is necessary for struggling readers. Some children may require dictation twice or thrice daily.

We hope you find this booklet useful.
